Suggested Review Agenda

1. Briefley Discuss Recent Related River Planning Situations in La Grande, Baker, and Union.

    La Grande - Gary
    Union - Ellen Bishop
    Baker - Gary

2. Discuss Possible Sources of Funding for both RV & Non-RV projects including river rehab projects.

3. Discuss Hunaha Park Alternative Development Strategies.

1. Discuss recent in La Grande

Contacts to Date:

1. Chris Hyland, COE, Walla Walla: Is interested in reviewing project further on-the-ground.

2. Chuck Huntington, Aquatic Biologist. Chuck feels that truncated ox-bows adjacent river could provide good salmon resting habitat. He feels the Grande Ronde River in the Elgin area needs considerable rehab work.

3. Chris Beck, Trust for Public Lands: Not sure of his role at

GREENBELTS, BIKE TRAILS AND NATURAL CORRIDORS.

ARE THESE IN THE FUTURE OF LA GRANDE?

Groups pledge support for Leo Adler Parkway concept

Representatives from Baker City schools, city and county governments, a senior citizens group and several service organizations have pledged support for the proposed Leo Adler Memorial Parkway.

A Baker Progress Board committee last week announced its plans for a two-mile paved foot-bicycle-rollerblade path along Powder River from Wade Williams Field to Hughes Lane.

About 20 people, several representing service clubs and other groups, attended a meeting Wednesday night in the Baker High School Commons, said Tabor Clarke, the parkway committee chairman.

"There's lots of things these private organizations can do, and we're exploring those," he said.

Representatives from the Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, American Association of University Women, Baker Education Association, Baker City Tree Board and Historic Baker City Inc. attended the meeting, said Randy Guyer, the committee's public relations chairman.

"The addition of the Leo Adler Memorial Parkway to the park system in Baker City will have a very beneficial impact on the youth of our community," said Arnold Coe, Baker School District superintendent. "Baker School District 5J has made a concerted effort to improve our athletic and recreational facilities by cooperating in the construction of a new tennis complex and the consideration of a new baseball complex. This pathway system will enhance our initiatives, and connect the high school facilities to other recreational areas in Baker City.

The Progress Board committee has also proposed linking the parkway to the high school via a path from the river near Riverpark Drive west to the school.

"Our community's senior population will enjoy the ability to walk along the Powder River," said Sherry Schaer, director of Community Connection of Baker County.

Tim Collins, Baker City attorney and a member of the Oregon Bicycle Advisory Committee, said the parkway would help the city meet its goals for more pedestrian and bicycle traffic.

Bill McHaney, Baker County's public works director, said the project "fits squarely with the county's master bicycle plan draft, which we hope will be ratified by June 1995."
